PRESIDENTS MESSAGE — March 2026

PRESIDENTS MESSAGE

Happy April Everyone.

Springtime is here (even though it feels more like summer). Last month we had a really successful auction. Although I wasn't able to attend, I heard there were some interesting lots. I also heard there was a private sale of a complete UNS set including the silver pony express. Which doesn't come up very often.

This coming month we will be having Bob Campbell speaking about counterfeit detection. It should be pretty interesting so make sure you are there.

SLAB LABELS

Douglas Nyholm

I was recently looking for an NGC 2026 silver eagle and gave Ebay a shot. I was amazed at how many different NGC labels have been created for a single date of a common silver eagle. Below are a total of 30 significantly different label designs from NGC for this coin. How many different ways do collectors collect various different labels from certification companies? Or, does anyone really care? I found these 30 different by just going through the first 3 pages of entries on EBay and only looking for NGC coins. There were over a dozen pages, who knows how many more there are and I didn't even look at anything from PCGS or ANACS. Simply stated, I was amazed. Which one would you pick for your collection, or do you want one of everything? I think this is marketing gone wrong or on steroids!

On this page and the previous page are pictured three items along with those listed in the spreadsheet above that are consigned with Troy Algood's coin shop in St. George. Most of these have been off the market for decades and were assembled by one of Al Rusts clients in Salt Lake.

Prictured are two Ft. Bridger items and a "Tenth Ward Lumber And Building Association" certificate. I have not seen these before and found them very interesting. Even today new items sometimes come out of hiding and appear in the market.

If anyone is interested in any of these items you can contact Troy Nelson at his shop in St. George. His phone number is 435-688-8743 or his son Tavish on his cell at 435-525-7751.

MEXICO 50 PESO GOLD COIN

Doug Nyholm

Mexico's 50 Peso gold coin was one of the first bullion coins to be minted. It was never intended for circulation and was first minted at the Mexico City mint in 1921. At this time many countries including the United State were still minting gold coins for general circulation. Most people never saw gold coinage in general circulation. The 50 Peso coin which was also known as a Centenario which was to commemorate Mexico's 100 years of independence. At the time it was the purest one ounce or larger gold coin until the release of South Africa's Krugerrand in 1967. The original minting period of this 50 Peso coin was 1921 to 1931. The scarcer dates are the initial date of 1921 and also the 1931 date. There was a gap in production after 1931 until it was again struck in 1943 of which saw the lowest production of only 89,000 pieces. None were struck in 1948 and then again mintage reissued in 1949 however the 1947 date was frozen at that time after which millions were subsequently struck in later years with the frozen date of 1947. Striking occurred from 1949 to 1972 during which time 3,975,654 coins were struck. Then again in 1996 7,954,777 coins were again struck still bearing the 1947 date. These coins are not distinguishable from the earlier struck coins. For the date of 1947 309,000 originals were struck and 3,975,650 restrikes were made. In the 1990's and 2000's restrikes of the 1947 date differ slightly in appearance and have somewhat prooflike and matte finishes.

The initial coin and history began in 1921 which as stated was intended as a commemorative. It was specifically designed as a high-value coin rather than a bullion coin. The design obverse was a "Winged Victory" or also referred to as the "Angel Of Independence." The coin contains 37.5 grams of gold which translates to 1.2057 ounce of pure gold. Total weight of the coin is 41.67 grams as it is .900 fine alloyed with copper for the remaining weight and purity. Mexico, a far as my research indicates, just arbitrarily chose 37.5 grams of gold in order to create one of the most impressive and largest gold coins in the world at that time. It was nicknamed the "Mini-ingot."

These coins have always been popular with collectors but more recently with the increases in the price of gold have developed a resurgence with people stacking bullion. Its added weight has driven up their price to over $6,000 each. These are readily available but earlier dates prior to 1947 can be more difficult to locate and have an additional numismatic premium depending on the date.

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

200th Consecutive Mint Master

April marks my 200th consecutive monthly Mint Master as editor. This marks over 16 years as the editor, and looking back I never thought that when the UNS put me in this position that I would still be editing our newsletter this long. Last month I officially joined the ranks of retired individuals so theoretically I should have much more time to research and write articles for the Mint master. But, I urge any member(s) to please submit something for a future publication. I'd rather not be a one-man show.

My other project for retirement is to re-inventory/catalog all my books and numismatic literature presently stored in several places in my home. I have begun this process and currently have about 600 items in my spreadsheet. This is definitely taking more time that I expected, but being retired, I guess I have time. I really enjoy my library and can look up almost any subject and find information before I start searching the internet. Actually, for the first time in researching the Mexican 50 Peso article in this issue I used "AI." It was marginally effective as my initial question for "AI" was to find out exactly why Mexico chose the gold content for this coin to be 37.5 grams. It found nothing specific except tor the fact that Mexico wanted a very large (heavy) and impressive gold coin.

Other than that, gold, silver and the war in Iran are seemingly making everything somewhat unstable. As reported the U.S. gets only 2% of our oil through the Straight of Hormuz but gas at the local stations is nearing $4.00 and diesel is well over $5.00. It doesn't make sense other than someone in the supply chain just thinks they can.

I remember while in the Navy I spent 3 days in Bandar Abbass Iran where as a helicopter crew chief we flew war games with the Shaw and Prince Charles. It was a very strange country even back then.

Sincerely, Douglas Nyholm

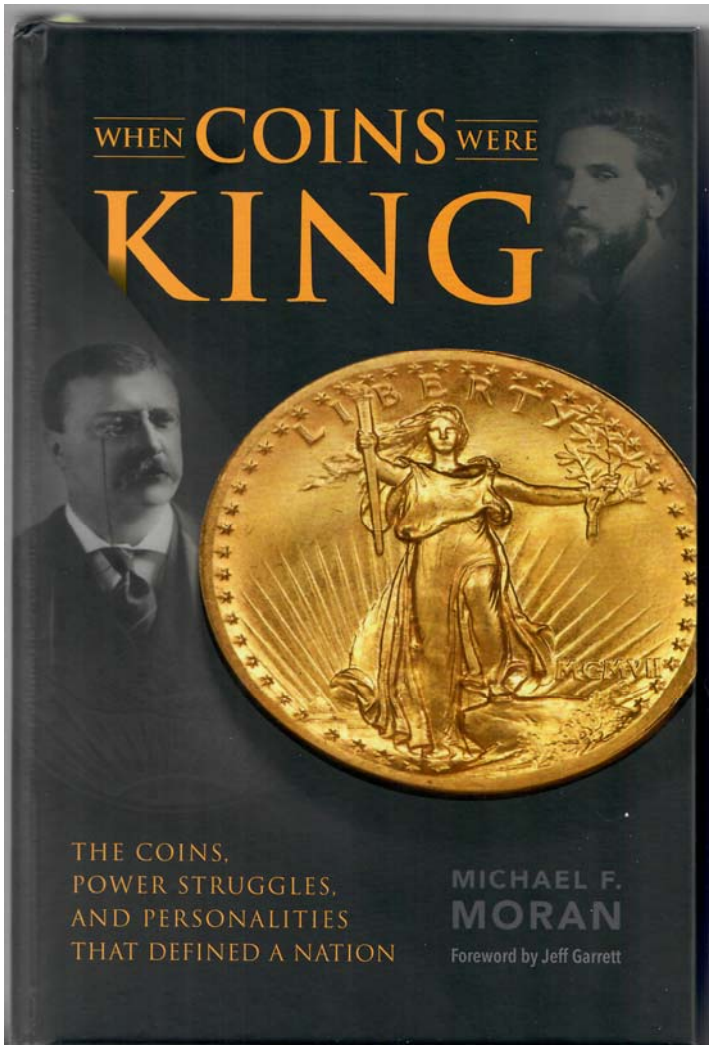
BOOK REVIEW

When Coins Were King

By Michael F. Moran



This is a new book published by Whitman and authored by Michael Moran. It is a collection of 66 stories of history, personalities, and stories from the early 1800's up to the mid 20th century.

It is a book that one does not flip through but has to delve into its stories, and you will understand just what happened to and the people involved with our coinage and the coins themselves.

I am still reading the stories and it is possible to skip around from one to another but it is a book that should be taken on a plane, train, or vacation.

I enjoy books that tell the who, what, why, and where of history and this book is packed full of this insight.

It is published in hardcover consisting of 510 pages. There are numerous illustrations and period pictures. The book is not illustrated in color but is of high quality and very interesting. The list price is $34.95 and available directly from Whitman or other numismatic book sellers.

Musings from our Recent Coin Show

Collin Cagle

For the last coin show at the Gail Miller campus, I had several of my coworkers come to the show. I had been talking to them for quite a while, and they got interested in coins and currency. They had bought several items online, they had asked me questions and learned enough to know that it is a great hobby. For many years I have been taking off from work to do shows. Over the past 20 years I have enjoyed working at coin shows, and learning about the hobby and learning all the ins and outs and what to expect from the market.

When my workmates arrived at the Gail Miller conference center I went out and met them and paid for them to come into the show.

They stopped at several tables before getting to my table, and after my table they walked around for several hours and purchased various coins and currency from other vendors. I really enjoyed being able to sell to a couple of them at my table, and they really appreciated the assortment and selection that I had for sale. They enjoyed the show and said that they would like to come to other shows in the future.

It was a pleasure for me to talk about coins with my coworkers, and to get them involved in coins and collecting. I genuinely enjoy it when I can answer questions, or search and find an answer for others when they ask me about different items in which they are interested.

This really brought joy and happiness to me knowing that I'm out there actively encouraging and supporting the hobby. Whether or not the people I meet and speak with concerning coin collecting come to our meetings, or whether they come to the coin shows, it gives me great joy when sharing our wonderful hobby with them. When others ask questions, it is a good feeling to be able to share your hobby and enthusiasm with them and I would encourage others to do so as well.
